

I strongly oppose allowing cell phone use aboard airborne aircraft. In such cramped quarters talking on the phone would be unbearable. How about giving those people who need to make an urgent call a place way in the back of the plane where they can all congregate together and jabber away.